

January 2017 - 2

Are Signs Pointing to a Greater Need for Co-operative Education? We Think So. Join us in July for the 2017 Institute in Denver.

Looking forward to the 2017 Institute in Denver in July, participants will be asked to think about the responsibilities of educators to pass along the how-to of keeping democracies vibrant. They will also explore how our individual organizations are intertwined.

The 2017 Institute will have Mobile Learning Sessions (tours) to Denver area cooperatives, including one to protect food-production through cooperative land ownership, another to transform talented cooks into business owners, and a worker-owned solar company that has precipitated new cooperative development including a credit union.

The Youth Caucus will again be a welcome addition to ACE and will help the Institute pass along co-op and democratic values to next generations.

If you would like to present at the 2017 ACE Institute, please contact program chair, Cathy Chamberlain, at aceeducators@me.com. We will announce the official date and location of the Institute soon.
